WEDNESDAY, JUNE 1, 1904.

We have seen "rarer" days in June than this.

This is the month of sweet girl graduates and blasted political hopes in Vermont.

Publisher Stiles of the Springfield Reporter shows evidences of continued prosperity by installing a new two-revolution Cottrell press. Publisher Stiles keeps up to date in everything.

Some one has made the suggestion that a little target practice at dogs by the police might not do any harm and might in time rid the city of one or two useless canines. We would suggest that the dogs be taken to some sequestered spot before the fusillade begins.

Would every town had a man as devoted to its interests as Ex-Gov. Woodbury is to the interests of Burlington. His latest offer is a building for the Vermont State Odd Fellows. Every new Burlington enterprise that promises to be a success finds a ready helper and he finds that it pays him to help boom Burlington—Middlebury Register.

Much as it may seem, this scheme on the part of the ex-governor is not entirely a philanthropic all-for-you-and-none-for-me proposition. Gov. Woodbury conducts a hotel in Burlington town and a hotel is not made to rattle with its own emptiness but is designed to be occupied by various and sundry individuals who happen to find themselves in town. Gov. Woodbury's hotel, we surmise, was not built on any different plan. We commend his proposition as guided by the head of a keen business man.

IT IS NO LONGER A MEMORIAL DAY.

In view of the lack of interest shown in Memorial day exercises and the turning to sports and recreations the St. Albans Messenger makes the suggestion that memorial exercises be held on a Sunday. If the significance of the day is not to be lost sight of some such a change will be necessary. As now constituted the patriotism of most people spends itself in witnessing the parade of the G. A. R. men and the few organizations that display enough interest to march with them, and then in giving themselves up to the pleasures that are presented. The decorating of the graves of the veterans and the public exercises are forgotten. These matters are left to the comparatively few, while the great majority of people turn to something more exciting, forgetting the meaning of the day and just remembering that it is one of a list of holidays on which there is a release of labor and a surrender to enjoyment. While the crowds are indulging in sports and recreation, the handful of veterans and those who are mindful of the significance of the day perform their solemn obligation to those through whose efforts the country is preserved to us. Such being the true conditions, obviously the real meaning of the day has been forgotten, and Memorial day is nothing more or less than a holiday pure and simple. If we are to treat this matter of a memorial to the soldier and sailor dead seriously, the holiday features must be removed. This cannot be better done than by setting apart a Sunday for the exercises.

No "back talk" here. If you bring a thing back, we buy it back. "Satisfaction is the oil of the business machine."

If June Were Mine.

If June were mine, I'd weave for you—
Of roses red and skies of blue,
Of golden sun and orchard green,
Of blossom-fretted dawns and—
A veil of every petal hue.

And from the morning mist of dew
Distill a fairy stream that through
The woods should wind a way serene,
If June were mine.

And e'er the purple dusk drew
The curtains of the sunset drew
Adown the river's dream demene
I'd paint a patch incarnadine
And drift into the dawn with you,
If June were mine.

Ladies of the Maccabees of the World.

The history of the Supreme Hive of the Ladies of the Maccabees of the World is a record of wonderful achievements. It heralds the advent of women in the fraternal benevolent world, in an organization composed of, and managed exclusively by women, which throws its benevolent influence over all who desire life protection and the protection of the home.

It is the recognized auxiliary branch of the Supreme Tent of the Knights of the Maccabees of the World, an Order founded upon the history and traditions of the Maccabean dynasty.

The Order of the Supreme Tent of the Knights of the Maccabees of the World was established in London, Ontario, in 1878, and in 1883 was reorganized upon a more stable foundation, and has resulted in the magnificent standing of 382,367 members of the Supreme Tent of the its interests centralized, adopted October 1, 1892, a resolution authorizing the formation of a Supreme Hive under the provision of the laws relating to auxiliary branches. In selecting the officers to take charge of this branch of the Order, members of hives already established in Michigan, New York and Ohio were appointed as Supreme Hive officers.

The record the Order has made in the eleven years of its existence is one to be proud of. Organized October 1, 1892, it has during the past eleven years spread into nearly every state in the Union and the Provinces of Canada, with 2,547 subordinate hives, and a membership of 136,921 women on January 1, 1904. Starting out without a member, and without a dollar in its treasury, it is now one of the most stable of the fraternal benevolent societies, with a balance of $39,678.25 in its general fund and no unpaid debts, and with the splendid emergency fund of $820,075.13 carefully invested in government and municipal bonds, the most secure of investments, and a total balance on hand in all funds January 1, of $1,003,- collect the assessments and forward the same to the national headquarters, and look after the financial and business management of the subordinate hives. Through this medium the entire business of the organization centralizes in the offices of the Supreme Hive and the Great Hives, from which it is disbursed in the payment of death claims.

Women are in charge of the organization and the field work, and the direction of the business in the Great Hives and state hives. The business management of the organization is in the hands of the Board of Trustees of the Supreme Hive during the recess of the Order.

Brilliant, resourceful, unfaltering—while they do not tell the story of the life and character of Miss Bina M. West, the Supreme Record Keeper of the Ladies of the Maccabees of the World, these three words indicate the compelling forces which have made that story one of success, of achievements reached, of plans brought with masterly skill to fruition, of hopes more than realized. With a grasp of facts and details almost incredible in its Knights of the Maccabees of the World today.

The origin of the Order of the Ladies of the Maccabees dates back to the year 1886, when the first hive was organized in Muskegon, Michigan, March 24th, composed of some of the wives of the Maccabees of that city. The plan for the organization was originally conceived by Mrs. A. G. Ward, of Muskegon, Michigan. The work grew and spread throughout the state of Michigan. The first hive in New York was organized at Grand Island, on March 11, 1891, and on July 15, 1892, the first hive in Ohio, Pearl Hive No. 1, was organized at Cleveland by Supreme Record Keeper Miss Bina M. West. Thus it was that the Order of the Ladies of the Maccabees originated in Michigan in 1886, and a number of hives were organized in the states of Michigan, New York, and Ohio, each state independent of the other in the management of its benefit and other funds, but all working as auxiliary branches of the Knights of the Maccabees in its various jurisdictions.

The organization of the Supreme Hive was by special action of the Supreme Tent of the Knights of the Maccabees of the World, who, realizing the necessity for a central head under which the hives of its auxiliary branch could be instituted and $27.97.

It has paid out during this period of time in the homes of its deceased and distressed members the great sum of $2,985,-337.40, and every dollar has gone into some home in time of distress and want. It has on its disability list 88 permanent and total disability members, who being unable to help themselves, receive during life one-tenth annually of the amount of their certificates, in sums of $50.00, $100.00 or $200.00 a year, as the case may be. This is one of the most beneficent features of the Supreme Hive of the Ladies of the Maccabees of the World.

There are over 112,251 members carrying life benefits in the Order, a total protection in force of over $62,449,485.78, making the Ladies of the Maccabees of the World the greatest financial institution among women of modern times. Probably there is no other institution of women today having the direction of business of such magnitude, and the business of this great Order is handled wholly by women. Women in subordinate hives preside over the meetings, and in this way get a knowledge of parliamentary law and procedure, as the business meetings of the Order are conducted under regularly defined rules. The subordinate finance keepers and record keepers of the hives comprehensiveness, a directness of insight piercing invariably the outer shell of unimportant circumstance or imperfect expression, and seizing upon the central kernel of thought or necessity, she has mastered each of the many different branches of business knowledge in which understanding and decision are required by her almost unique position.

One of the strongest women of the Women's Relief Corps is Lillian M. Hollister, Supreme Commander of the Ladies of the Maccabees of the World. Mrs. Hollister is a Michigan woman, resident of Detroit, and one of the few women who have been equally successful as a business woman and organizer. National Leaflet No. 68, issued by the Woman's Temperance Publishing Association, Chicago, on 'How to Organize and Carry on a Convention,' is from her pen.—National Tribune.

"Supreme Commander Hollister is an excellent presiding officer. She possesses an excellent knowledge of parliamentary law, is quick to grasp the situation and rule upon it, and her decisions were always respected."—Bradford Era.
